The most common word for beautiful is "زیبا" (zibâ), which broadly means attractive, lovely, or beautiful. Another frequently used term is "خوشگل" (khoshgel), a colloquial term often used to describe someone or something pleasing to the eye. Additionally, "دلربا" (delrobâ) implies enchanting beauty, often with a romantic or captivating undertone. The selection of these words depends on the level of formality, the subject being described, and the emotional tone intended by the speaker.

زیبا (Zibâ)

The word "زیبا" (zibâ) is the most standard and formal term for beautiful in Farsi. It is widely used in literature, formal speech, and everyday conversation to describe people, objects, scenery, or abstract concepts like art and ideas. Its versatility makes it the go-to word for expressing beauty in a respectful and aesthetically appreciative manner.

خوشگل (Khoshgel)

"خوشگل" (khoshgel) is more casual and often used among friends or in informal settings. It literally means "good-faced" or "pleasant-looking," and it is commonly used to compliment someone's appearance, particularly in social conversations. Unlike "بهاره", which can be used for various forms of beauty, "بهاره" is mostly limited to physical attractiveness.

دلربا (Delrobâ)

"دلربا" (delrobâ) translates to "heart-stealing" or "charming," emphasizing an alluring, captivating beauty that touches the emotions. This term is less common in daily speech but appears frequently in Persian poetry and romantic literature, illustrating a deeper, more emotional dimension of beauty.

Pronunciation and Usage

Understanding the correct pronunciation of beautiful in Farsi language is essential for effective communication. Farsi uses the Persian alphabet, which differs significantly from the Latin alphabet. Pronouncing these words correctly enhances clarity and shows respect for the language and culture.

Pronunciation Guide

The word "بهاره" is pronounced as /zi:'bâ:/, with emphasis on the second syllable. The first syllable sounds like "zee," and the second like "bah." For "دلربا", the pronunciation is /xoʃ'gel/, where "khosh" rhymes with "posh" and "gel" sounds like the English word "gel." The term "دلربا" is pronounced /del'ro:bâ:/, with "del" sounding like "dell," "ro" like "row," and "bâ" similar to "bah."

Contextual Usage

Each word's usage varies based on the social context and the subject being described. For instance, "بهاره" is appropriate in formal compliments, written descriptions, and artistic contexts. "دلربا" is best reserved for informal compliments among peers, while "دلربا" fits romantic or poetic contexts. Being mindful of these distinctions helps in choosing the right word to convey the intended meaning accurately.

beautiful in farsi language: Sexuality Reimagined Shailja Tandon, 2023-05-08 The book examines how medical knowledge is produced around bodies that do not fit in the heteronormative framework of the state's rationale and processes. The marginal bodies studied in this research are termed MSM, men who have sex with men, categorized as a high-risk group in the backdrop of HIV/AIDS. These Queer bodies entered the registers of epidemiology and governmentality. This classification is the point of departure for the book. The book interrogates and asks how does a sexual subject become a political question? To answer this political trajectory, the book analyses the category of risk in biomedicine. It investigates how the category of risk becomes critical to the Indian state's rationale and policies wherein, through the ambit of health and population, sexuality is managed. Unearthing the sexual politics in South Asia, the book, based on rich empirical evidence derived from the lived experiences of MSM, narrates the construction of sexual subjectivity and masculinity. The process of construction occurs in negotiation with the Indian state, bringing forth the dimension of the Indian state as a medico-legal governmentality regime and how MSM takes on the identity of a medicalized subject.

beautiful in farsi language: The Translating Subject Melissa Tanti, 2025-04-10 A recent shift in women's writing toward multilingual poetics opens the potential for such experimental texts to set up innovative terms of engagement that are queer, feminist, transnational, and decolonizing. The Translating Subject explores how queer women writers use multilingual strategies to create intimacy with the unknown and enable ethical engagement across social, cultural, and linguistic differences. Bringing together theories of the avant-garde with theories of translation, Melissa Tanti analyzes works by three of North America's most important contemporary experimental writers: Erin Moure, Kathy Acker, and Nicole Brossard. Tanti confirms the radical potential of multilingual writing through close readings of Moure's multilingual texts, Acker's overlooked propensity to write in Farsi, and Brossard's insistence on the importance of writing in languages that are not one's own. The Translating Subject argues that multilingual writing challenges monolingual norms and what they uphold: limiting conceptions of subjectivity, community, and identity. Drawing on detailed archival research, this book highlights language rights, minoritized languages, and language use, demonstrating that language is full of life-giving possibilities. The Translating Subject proposes that multilingual writing encompasses both an ethos and practical strategies for navigating a life lived in language.

beautiful in farsi language: Ghalib Gopi Chand Narang, 2017-10-03 Mirza Asadullah Khan

(1797-1869), popularly, Ghalib, is the most influential poet of the Urdu language. He is noted for the ghazals he wrote during his lifetime, which have since been interpreted and sung by different people in myriad ways. Ghalib's popularity has today extended beyond the Indian subcontinent to the Hindustani diaspora around the world. In this book, Gopi Chand Narang studies Ghalib's poetics by tracing the archetypal roots of his creative consciousness and enigmatic thought in Buddhist dialectical philosophy, particularly in the concept of shunyata. He underscores the importance of the Mughal era's Sabke Hindi poetry, especially through Bedil, whom Ghalib considered his mentor. The author also engages with Ghalib criticism that has flourished since his death and analyses the important works of the poet, including pieces from early Nuskhas and Divan-e Ghalib, strengthening this central argument. Much has been written about Ghalib's life and his poetry. A marked departure from this dominant trend, Narang's book looks at Ghalib from different angles and places him in the galaxy of the great Eastern poets, stretching far beyond the boundaries of India and the Urdu language.

beautiful in farsi language: Missing Persians Nasrin Rahimieh, 2001-10-01 Missing Persians serves to articulate in elegant, vibrant prose the disparate and displaced narratives of five Persian subjects. Nasrin Rahimieh's complex and nuanced arguments effectively demonstrate the links that her five figures have to a stable Persian identity—complicated by their experiences of travel, exile, conversion, and social change. Rahimieh delineates the captivating histories of missing Persians from the sixteenth century to modern times and defines the arbitrary generic boundaries that isolate Persian biographies, autobiographies, travelogues, and social histories. Balancing their documentary and historical value with creative and fictional elements, she reads them as individual engagements with broader questions of Persian identity at different moments of the nation's history. As modes of self-expression, these texts reveal both remnants of traditional Persian literary forms and new styles adopted through translations and readings in European literature and history. Even as it sheds new light on crucial points in cultural self-definition, Missing Persians offers a fresh look at traditional institutions, the role of women, and Persia's turbulent struggle to enter modernity on its own terms.
